Ms. Shweta Chougule is a distinguished academician and clinical nutritionist committed to advancing academic innovation and healthcare education. As Academic Coordinator, she leads curriculum planning, faculty development, quality assurance, and the implementation of learner-centric pedagogies.

With exceptional foresight, she has developed and implemented outcome-based, UGC-aligned curricula that combine regulatory compliance with practical relevance. Her leadership extends to active roles in key institutional governance and academic oversight bodies, where she ensures academic rigor and institutional growth.

A dedicated researcher focusing on research she regularly presents at national and international forums, bridging the gap between research and practice. She fosters a research-driven culture among students and faculty through mentoring, scholarly publications, academic symposia, and conferences.

Her educational philosophy prioritizes student success through personalized mentoring, academic counselling, teaching, student assessment, practical training, and examination responsibilities. She has enhanced her expertise by participating in over 25+ Faculty Development Programs, workshops, and international knowledge-sharing events focused on clinical nutrition and education policy.

An active member of various professional bodies, she brings extensive knowledge, experience, and collaborative spirit to all academic engagements. Her ongoing contributions continue to shape Allied Health Sciences by fostering a culture of excellence, inquiry, and empowerment.
